National Youth Festival 2023

A festival that unites art, sports and cultures; a festival that builds an atmosphere of knowledge, skills and talent; a festival that celebrates the youth

The National Youth Festival in India is an annual gathering of youth celebrated during the birth anniversary of Swami Vivekanada as a tribute to his teachings and contribution. It is organized by the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports, Government of India in collaboration with State Governments.

The 26th festival held from 12-16 January 2023 was organised in Hubballi-Dharwad, Karnataka and was inaugurated by Honourable Prime Minister, Shri Narendra Modi. The theme of the festival 'Viksit Yuva - Viksit Bharat' aimed to bring diverse cultures from all parts of the country on a common platform and unite the participants in the spirit of Ek Bharat, Shreshtha Bharat. The five-day festival hosted various activities including competitive ones with a focus on diversity and youth empowerment. It also provided a platform for the youth to showcase their talents and aspirations.

The National Youth Festival was organized in collaboration with the Karnataka State Government, Nehru Yuva Kendra Sangathan (NYKS), and the National Service Scheme (NSS). More than 7500 youth delegates representing States and UTs, NYKS, and NSS participated in the event exhibiting their talents and exclusive culture. A microcosm of young India converged in Karnataka and returned with joyful learning experiences, and memories for a lifetime. During the event, a historic Yogathon was organized which witnessed participation from lakhs of people across 31 districts, along with the festival's participants. It was a tribute to India's rich history and an attempt to emphasize on the benefits of Yoga.

To ensure it was a 'Green Festival' all the activities were mandated to follow the six 'R's of waste management -- Refuse, Reduce. Reuse, Repair, Recycle, Rethink. There was a complete restriction on single use disposables at all venues. Setting up water refill kiosks, providing reusable water sippers to participants, event collaterals and publicity materials made of recycled or sustainable materials, use of reusable cutlery in all dining areas, use of mass transport including public transportation were some of the green initiatives that were undertaken.

This book illustrates the five-day celebrations through visuals and highlights.

Shri. Thaawarchand Gehlot, Governor of Karnataka and Dr Shalini Rajneesh, Additional Chief Secretary, releasing SDG activity calendar and a handbook on SDGs for the youth.

SDGs for Youth

The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), also known as the global goals, are a shared blueprint for the prosperity of the planet, for now and the future. The goals are an urgent call for action for all countries to address deprivations, ensure accessibility, preserve natural resources, and reduce inequalities, while leaving no one behind. The SDGs particularly call upon the youth to action as they are the future leaders and change-makers. The youth's determination in their effort to find solutions is critical to attaining a sustainable world as the young people create a platform for dialogue and have a futuristic vision.

Youth have always been the drivers of change with a determination to find solutions, create dialogue and envision a future for all, all of which are critical to attaining a sustainable world. Threading together many of its priorities, India has made progress in clean India (Swachh Bharat Mission) with active involvement of youth, has established NITI Aayog to pioneer the cause of sustainable development, and has increased its renewable energy capacity making India one of the leaders in green leadership. With consultation with the youth, India's current G20 presidency envisions 'inclusivity, ambitious, decisive, and action-oriented' approach in driving innovation and growth.

The 3-day youth summit was a platform to interact on various topics with eminent personalities talking about digital India, sustainability, democracy, climate change, and more. The sessions had 30 speakers and over 1200 young minds in attendance sharing their views and solutions on global issues.

World is highly optimistic about India, its youth: Modi

'We Must Make 21st Century India's Century'

ON THE ROAD: PM Modi held a roadshow in Hubballi city on Thursday

TOI

Hubballi: Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Thursday said the next 25 years are crucial for India, as there is a great optimism in the world towards India and its youth.

"We must make the 21st century India's century, and to do so, we must think ten steps ahead of the present. There are global surveys that show big investors want to invest in India, and these investors want to invest in you (youth)," said Modi after inaugurating the 26th edition of the National Youth Festival here to mark the birth anniversary of Swami Vivekananda.

Noting that India is the world's fifth-largest economy, with a goal of making it to the top three, Modi stated that the country's economic growth will provide ample opportunities for the youth. This is a historic time when optimism and opportunity are coming together, the PM stated.

Invoking Swami Vivekananda's famous slogan 'Arise, awake and stop not until the goal is reached', Modi called upon youths to make the 21st century as "the century of India", while adding that the ongoing period is a "special time in history" and that this generation is special one.

In the last 8-9 years, Modi said, a solid foundation has been laid in every domain. "The runway is ready for you to take off, whether it is for economy or education, sports or entrepreneurship, skill development or digitisation. You (the youth) now have a mission to make a global impact for India," he added.

Modi said he strongly believes that by the end of this decade, emerging technologies such as artificial intelligence, machine learning and the Internet of Things will have evolved significantly, and data science and cybersecurity will have become much deeper parts of people's lives. So our youth should be prepared with future skills.

Modi advised the youth to take lessons from Swami Vivekananda to forge ahead in life, with the key being the advice that there were three phases for any new idea: Ridicule, opposition, and acceptance. Projects initiated by the Union government, such as digital payments, Swachch Bharath Abhiyaan, indigenous Covid vaccines are examples, he said.

"So if you have a new idea, you may be the butt of jokes, but if you have trust in your idea, stick to it. Positive disruption is essential to move ahead of developed nations," Modi said repeatedly, invoking Swami Vivekananda.

The youth festival, in which more than 7,500 youth delegates from different parts of the country are taking part, will conclude on January 26.

Runway prepared for your takeoff, Modi tells youth

Says 'Yuva Shakti' is driving force of economic growth

HUBBALLI, DHNS

Asserting that Yuva Shakti is the driving force in India's economic growth, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Thursday said there is great optimism in the world towards India and its youth.

"Global voices are saying that this century belongs to India and its youth. In the last eight-nine years, foundation has been laid in all domains including economy, education, skill development and digitisation for the special mission of youth to make an impact for India on the global scene. The runway is ready for your takeoff," he said.

Noting that Indian startups are getting record investment, while many global companies are setting up manufacturing units to 'Make in India', Modi said youth are responsible for the phenomenon of looking at India today.

Speaking after inaugurating the 26th National Youth Festival here on Thursday, Modi also termed the new National Education Policy (NEP) as the foundation to make youth future-ready by preparing a practical and futuristic education system, asking the youth to have futuristic approach, to link with new things in the world, and to do positive disruption to overtake developed countries.

"Some people said initiatives like digital payment, Swachh Bharat Mission, Jan Dhan accounts and indigenous vaccine against Covid-19 would not work. Today, India is successful in all these and is being discussed worldwide. Some people may laugh or oppose when you become innovative, but stick to it if you are confident, and you will be successful," Modi said.

Predicting a possibility of some non-existing things at present becoming mainstream professions for the youth in future, Modi said emerging technologies like AI, machine learning, IOT and data science would change the world.

"We are the fifth largest economy now, and our target is to take the country to the top three positions. The economic growth has brought a lot of opportunities for the youth," he said.

Observing that the next 25 years are important for building the nation, Modi said, Yuva Shakti drives the country's journey. India is a leader in agriculture, while a new revolution is coming in this field through technology and innovation, which would create new opportunities for youth."

Modi invoked in his speech Swami Vivekananda, Kittur Rani Chennamma, Sangolli Rayanna, Narayan Dutt, a young martyr, Jnanpith awardees and music maestros of the region among others.

Governor Thaawarchand Gehlot, Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai, Union Parliamentary Affairs Minister Pralhad Joshi, Union Youth Affairs and Sports Minister Anurag Singh Thakur and others were present.

Youth policy aims at overall devpt of youth: CM

Contribute for country's progress, Anurag tells youth

DHARWAD, DHNS

Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai stated that the Youth Policy of Karnataka has given importance to education, sports, culture, and personality development, and the policy is based on the message of Swami Vivekananda.

Speaking at the valedictory of the 26th National Youth Festival here on Monday, he said, the State government has formulated the schemes under Swami Vivekananda Yuvashakti Sangha to extend financial assistance, planning, and provide marketing facilities for the youth. It would provide self-employment to five lakh youth, Bommai added.

Under the Amrit Kreeda programme, 75 sports persons have been adopted and trained. Through the rural sports meets, rural sports talents are being identified and being patronaged, he noted.

Bommai said, the National Youth Festival is a successful and memorable event, even as hundreds of youths from all over the country came to Dharwad to participate in it.

Though culture and life are different, the hearts of Indians feel for Bharath Matha. Nationalism has held all of them high. Man is an emotional being, and emotion is required for the development of the nation, he noted.

Lakhs of Indians had to make the sacrifice to free the nation from the clutches of the Britishers, but they must live for the nation. The nation's development lies in the progress of everybody. The nation and the people are not separate, Bommai said.

Times never wait for any person, and so they must maintain the speed to be active in life. The focus of youth must be on their aim. Life of youths will be joyful and hard-working, and they must use their inner strength for the fulfillment of their dreams and achieve their target, he advised.

'New India of innovations'

Union Youth Affairs & Sports Minister Anurag Singh Thakur called upon the youth to contribute for the overall development of the country, and not just for their own future.

The National Youth Festival is a symbol of progress, and a new India should be built with new innovations. Youth have become entrepreneurs through 80,000 startups in the country, and the government has provided a lot of facilities for the poor. There are ample opportunities to learn in a country like India which has diversity, Thakur said.

Thakur also said, challenges are also more in a big country like India. He also asked the youth to participate in large numbers in Y-20 interaction meets being organised to mark the the country's G-20 presidency.

Highlighting the importance of reduce, reuse, and recycle, Thakur lauded the efforts to make the youth festival a green event. He also expressed happiness as lakhs of people who attended the youth festival.

It's adieu to 'Peda City' by National Youth Fest participants

Most of them were in praise of people here & organisers

ANAND V YAMNUR
DHARWAD, DHNS

After the 5-day cultural jamboree, which literally electrified the youth in the twin cities, the nearly 7,500 participants of the 26th National Youth Festival (NYF) who had come from all the States and Union Territories in the country, said adieu to the cultural capital of North Karnataka Dharwad on Tuesday.

The 5-day cultural, and arts festival, organised by the Union Youth Empowerment & Sports Ministry, in association with the State ministry, saw nearly five lakh footfalls at the five venues of the NYF in the City. The main cultural stage was set up at the Karnatak College ground in the City, which saw nearly 70,000 people attending the events daily for five days.

With the 7,500 strong participants giving mesmerising and electrifying performances at the main stage, even the sky was no bonds for the people here.

And on Tuesday morning, it was time for the 7,500 strong participants to say good-bye to Dharwad. Throughout the day, based on the timings of their mode of transport back to their respective States and Union Territories like plane, bus, or train, the students throughout the day left for their respective places.

Good feel for Dharwad

As they went away, they have taken a good memory of the National Youth Festival along with Dharwad with them.

Aadhya Pahadi, a member of the Uttar Pradesh skit team, was all in praise for the organisers and Dharwad. "This is the first time that I have left Uttar Pradesh, and I am taking back sweet memories of Karnataka," she noted.

She noted that the people here were very warm, and whomsoever she came in contact with in these five days, all were most helpful. Everything was so perfectly organised that we did not feel that we had left our home far, she added.

Moreover, most of the participants were very happy with the variety of foods they were served with. "We did not know that there was so much variety in the foods," said Varun, a member of the traditional dance team from Kerala.

Thumbs-up for peda

All the participants who came Dharwad were welcomed with a packet of the famous Dharwad Peda. Like the people here, almost all the participants tremendously liked the sweet.

However, a surprising thing here was that on the first day itself, the participants were made aware on the original Dharwad peda.

During the course of their stay, most of them had come to know that 'Thakur Peda' was the original peda, and not the Mishra Peda that they were given earlier. As a Thakur Peda outlet was also there in the Food Fest section in KCD grounds, there was a huge rush at the stall on the last day as participants, who wanted to take the peda back to their homes, were buying from a kilo to five kilos.

"This is most nice sweet that I have tasted so far. The taste itself is so unique," said Bareen Bhatt from Srinagar in Jammu & Kashmir. "I am taking five kilos of this sweet to distribute there," she said.

Nevertheless, most of the participants were ready to come to Dharwad again if given a chance.

Kudos to police for making NYF crime-free event

DHARWAD, DHNS

Any big event, spread over many days, is bound to have many unfortunate or untoward incidents. However, the National Youth Festival held for five days in Dharwad turned out to be an untoward-incident-free moment. Thanks to the Hubballi-Dharwad police personnel, and those who had come from outside for security.

Right from the day Prime Minister Narendra Modi landed in Hubballi on January 12 to inaugurate the National Youth Festival at the Railway Grounds in Hubballi, till the conclusion of the 5-day youth festival on Monday evening, Dharwad did not report any untoward incident.

The tight and intelligent security provided by the police, headed by Hubballi-Dharwad Police Commissioner Raman Gupta, made the event an incident-free event. Hundreds of police personnel from Hubballi-Dharwad, and from outside were deployed for security.

All apprehensions were during the visit of Modi on January 12, as the prime minister decided to hold an unprecedented eight-kilometer roadshow standing all along the route on the step of his vehicle waving to the huge crowds. However, due to tight security provided by the police, led by ADGP (Law & Order) Alok Kumar, the event went on very smoothly. Nevertheless, Alok Kumar also laid the security cordons for NYF.

For the five days in Dharwad, the City witnessed at least four lakh people witnessing the cultural events that unfolded during the festival.

Right from the higher ranking police officials to the constable on the road, everyone made the event a memorable one.

The arrangements at the Karnatak College campus, where the main events were held daily evening, no untoward incident was reported due to tactful handling of the situation. The security in and around the college campus was totally tight, but loose enough for the youths and people to enjoy. More than 70,000 people visited the Karnatak College campus daily evening to witness the cultural events.

Instead of the police being rash on people as it usually is, the police were very helpful, and smilingly directed the people.

The police were also successful in controlling the huge number of vehicles coming to event. parking was made on all the roads leading to the college campus. Moreover, instead of scolding the people for wrong parking, the police were all courteous in guiding the people for the right parking places.

Not only the people from the twin cities, but the participants, both girls and boys, in the youth festival who had come from all the States and Union Territories were in praise for the local police for handling the situation tactfully. A girls' team from Uttar Pradesh even stated that crime in UP would come down drastically if Hubballi-Dharwad police were posted there.

At the end, if there was a word by the people and participants to tell the police, it will be on big THANK YOU POLICE.

Acknowledgements

On behalf of the Ministry of Youth Affairs – Government of India and the Department of Youth Empowerment & Sports – Government of Karnataka, a heartfelt thanks to all the organizers of the event and the volunteers for hosting a successful 26th National Youth Festival in Hubballi-Dharwad, Karnataka and for making the event a grand success.

Many thanks to all the performers, vendors, and youth delegates who participated in the festival and making it a vibrant and exciting event.

Most importantly, a sincere appreciation to all the local authorities, police department, the venue providers – Karnataka Arts College, Dharwad and University of Agriculture, and to all the States for their extensive contribution to the event.
